How to get in Utrecht

The nearest airport to Utrecht is Schiphol Amsterdam. There is a regular Intercity rail service from Schiphol Airport to Utrecht Central which first makes stops at Amsterdam Zuid and Amsterdam Bijlmer. The Schiphol-Utrecht journey takes just over 30 minutes (€9-15). There is also a direct high-speed train connection from Bonn, Germany. Coming with the Thalys high-speed train from Brussels-Paris you have to transfer at Rotterdam Central Station.

How to get around

Bike: The easiest and most common way of getting around in Utrecht is by bike. You can rent a bike for €8,- per day at the Tourist information office, at Domplein 9. If you want to store your bike in a safe place, you can do that at various indoor cycle sheds. For more information: https://www.visit-utrecht.com/explore-utrecht/cycling

Bus or Tram: The inner city of Utrecht is best reached by public transport. City buses are entering the centre from all directions and an extensive network of city buses makes every area of the city very accessible.
